One of the most important (and most difficult) positions in our organizations is our Front Line Leaders. It is where the organization has direct contact with our team members that provide value to our customers. The performance of our Front Line Leaders has a large impact on our organization's ability to generate and deliver value.

The HPSC Front Line Leadership Development program provides your leaders with the skills to create a high performance culture and engage their teams in Lean Thinking.

In addition to the Lean focused content of the workshops, the Leaders and their Mentors are supported by an expert coach between workshop to practice the skills they learn and to ensure skill development continues after the conclusion of the program.

What you will Learn

Lean Thinking for Leaders

Overview of Lean Thinking as it applies to a high performance environment. Application of lean tools such as visual management in an office or production setting.

Coaching for High Performance

Motivate and provide meaningful feedback to build bench strength. Delegate, manage expectations and identify performance gaps to enhance skill development.

Changing Culture

Learn how high performance cultures are created and perpetuated. Apply tools to help team members transition through change and thrive in a learning organization.

Engagement

Develop communication skills to engage team members, prevent conflict and interact effectively with all levels and departments. Improve self leadership to inspire followers and build a culture of accountability.

Problem Solving & Team Skills

Develop high performance team skills to improve productivity, problem solving and innovation. Apply problem solving tools such as A-3 to increase influence and achieve business goals.
